Mr. Went-And-Cut-It—Here's Mr. 'Gots-It'

The New Plan Corn Cure That's as Sure as the Rising Sun.

"Glad to meet you" says the razor to the corn. "I'll bleed you" says the corn to the razor. Razors and corns love each other. Corns love to be cut.

"Way, O Way, Did I Do It 'Gots-It' For Me After This—If I Ever!"

be cut, gouged, salved, plastered and jerked out—they grow faster. Mr. and Mrs. Went-And-Cut-It realize it now—they use "Gots-It" instead—it's the wonderful, simple corn-cure that never fails. Stops pain. You apply it in 2 seconds. It dries at once, the corn is doomed. Nothing to stick to the stocking or press on the corn. It means good-night to plasters, salves, diggers, razors and toe-bundling. You can wear smaller shoes. Your corns will come right off, "clean as a whistle." Never inflames healthy flesh. The world's biggest selling corn cure. "Gots-It" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

When Pens Were First Used.

About the year 600 A. D. pens made of quills were introduced. This is shown by the fact that the word penman, a quill, is not found, it is claimed, in any work bearing an earlier date. Previous to that time the word calamus, signifying a reed, was exclusively employed as a designation for the vehicle used in transferring the ink to the parchment or other surface selected by the writers of that early age. Steel pens first came into use in 1803, and about twenty-two years later those composed of gold made their appearance.

Two Hundred Fifty Stories

And every story a good one. They are entertaining, but that is not all you can say about them. You know there is hardly a periodical published that is not full of time-wasting stories, but not a single story in The Youth's Companion is a time waster. Take the stories of C. A. Stephens. It would be hard to pick out one from which you cannot learn something useful and yet entertaining.

Some of The Companion stories refresh your knowledge of geography; some tell you the mysteries of chemistry; some reveal the secrets of forestry and of general farming. They cover a wide range. They are chosen with an eye to the possible likings of every member of a Companion family—stories of vigorous action and stirring adventure for boys, stories of college life and domestic vicissitudes for girls, stories that range all the way from sheer drudgery to deep seriousness for men and women. There are no stories quite like those in The Companion, and you get 250 of them, and a lot besides, for $2.00.

If you are not familiar with The Companion as it is today, let us send you sample copies and the "Forecast" for 1916.

The Youth's Companion, Boston, Mass.

Origin of Pajamas.

Pajamas are garments which Europeans adopted from the Mohammedans of India. The name means simply leg garments, and earlier generations in India knew them as "long drawers" and "mugul breeches." It is only of recent years that they have sprung into almost universal use in England in place of nightshirts—which some one characterized as equivalent to adopting trousers in place of frock coats—but references to the garments have been traced as early as 1828.

"Peejams," "pigammahs" and "pajammah" were some of former variants in use, and Thackeray wrote of them as "pajammahs." The standard spelling is only a recent agreement.

A Use For His Voice.

On one occasion while crossing the ocean David Bispham, the famous opera singer, in addition to his contribution to the usual concert program given for the benefit of the sailors' widows and children fund offered to auction a program which had been autographed by all the distinguished people on board. He actually secured $800 for the program, which was added to the receipts from tickets. After it was all over a gentleman approached Mr. Bispham and said, with all due admiration and enthusiasm: "Say, I'm a New York auctioneer, and I want to tell you that was great work you did tonight. Here is my card, and whenever you want to give up singing you just come down to me, and I'll give you $10,000 a year to sell our stuff."

The Man Who Works Overtime

is not always the best friend of his eyesight. The eyes suffer more than any other physical faculty from overwork under artificial illumination. Even daylight contains a large percentage of rays harmful to eyesight. All that danger can be done away with if you view your work through lenses made to your prescription from the wonderful new glass discovered by Sir William Crookes, that actually filters out all the harmful colors. Don't neglect your sight whether you work overtime or not.
